OBJECTIVES AND ACHIEVEMENTS

Unit Description

Legally, the CEA-IUL is a non-profit association that includes the Research and Development unit (Unidade I&D) of the same name, since May 2010 called CEA-IUL following its integration in the ISCTE-IUL (Instituto Universitário de Lisboa). CEA-IUL is organised according to the internal rules of the ISCTE-IUL (DL 95/2009) that follows the rules stipulated by the Foundation for Science and Technology of the Ministry of Science, Technology, and Higher Education. The association CEA includes the following directive bodies: Board, Presidency of the Assembly and Fiscal Control Commission, elected every two years by the general assembly of the associates. The R&D Unit is directed by a director, nominated by the ISCTE-IUL dean, and two sub-directors. It includes a scientific council of three researchers directed elected by the group of researchers of the unit, plus the director. The Scientific Council role is to watch over the scientific orientation and quality of all activities. CEA-IUL presently has six hired full-time researchers (associate researchers) and eight post-doc researchers. The hosting conditions of the CEA-IUL include its infrastructures and administrative services. The centre is located at the ISCTE and has access to ISCTE-IUL databases and library services. Among diverse research support activities the most important one is the African Studies Central Library, funded by the FCT with a complementary fund of the Calouste Gulbenkian Foundation, supported by ISCTE-IUL's librarian services. CEA-IUL has a multi-annual funding program that has been partially used to support scientific events (conferences, seminars), researcher's participation in international meetings, field missions in Africa, and publications. CEA-IUL publishes, on a regular basis, the Occasional Paper Series (online, since 2005) and the scientific journal Cadernos de Estudos Africanos. In 2010 launched the monographic collection Africa em Perspectiva and has an agreement with Kingston Publishers (United Kingdom) to publish the African Vistas collection. More information about the CEA-IUL can be found at its website: www.cea.iscte.pt

General Objectives

The general objective of the CEA-IUL is to promote interdisciplinary studies in the social sciences on Sub-Saharan Africa as a whole, while paying special attention to the Lusophone African countries. This objective is pursued mainly through research, scientific meetings and publications, teaching, dissemination of relevant information about African affairs, and through international networks. CEA-IUL also offers consultant services on the domains of its specialty.

a) Research

The projects conducted by CEA-IUL researchers comprise three main research lines plus a knowledge dissemination line:

- (1) States, Public Policies and International Regulation
- (2) Social and Cultural Dynamics
- (3) Globalisation, Economics and Development
- (4) DIKAS (library and publications).

CEA-IUL has currently 21 active research projects (12 of them lead by the CEA), involving more than 40 PhD holders, full-time or part-time; 37 of them have the status of integrated researchers.

b) Teaching

The CEA-IUL is actively involved in postgraduate programs in African Studies and Development Studies. There is a close cooperation with the School of Sociology and Public Policies (ISCTE) through the MA and a PhD program on African Studies and with the School of Social and Human Sciences through the MA programs on Development, Local Diversities and Global Challenges; Social and Solidarity Economy; and Development and Global Health. In other universities, CEA-IUL cooperates with the Master program in African History (Department of History of Lisbon University). At the international level, CEA-IUL members collaborate with other European and African universities and research institutions.

c) Networking

The CEA-IUL has developed connections with research centres, universities and individual researchers in Portugal, other European countries, Africa, Brazil, and in the US. Every project is constituted by an international team and supported by a formal agreement between the partners. CEA-IUL has research protocols with institutions both in Europe and Africa and is a member of several international networks. CEA-IUL is a founding member of the AEGIS - European African Studies association. Since 2006 CEA-IUL is member of the ABORNE (African Borderland Research Network), funded by the ESF. Nine running projects are lead by European I&D institutions.

d) Services

A Services' Nucleus of the CEA-IUL is currently offering consultancy services to a number of institutions with the intention to expand its activities over the coming years. Main areas of activity include social and economic studies in Africa, evaluation and training

e) Publications and Library

CEA manages the Central Library of African Studies in Portugal. The centre publishes, on a regular basis, the Occasional Paper Series and the scientific journal Cadernos de Estudos Africanos. In 2010 launched the monographic collection Africa em Perspectiva and has an agreement with Kingston Publishers (United Kingdom) to publish the African Vistas collection

Main Achievements during the year of 2010

The core achievements in 2010 consisted in: a) reorganization of research and activities lines at the CEA b) research projects c) the Central Library of African Studies (BCEA) d) organisation of scientific meetings and conferences e) international network of research; f) publications and g) teaching and consultancy.

a) In 2010, CEA-IUL undertook a major reformulation of its research and activities lines. Three new lines integrate the research carried at this unit and a fourth one, DIKAS, integrates both the library activities and the publications, expressing the importance of knowledge dissemination at this centre.

b) CEA-IUL carried out or initiated 21 major projects (12 of them lead by the CEA), submitted to international evaluation, involving about 100 researchers. All these projects have international and interdisciplinary research teams and many of them international funding.

c) BCEA activities have increased both regarding book acquisition and indexation. In 2010 the indexation of the books acquired through the project of Re-equipamento Científico (FCT funding) was concluded, while the indexation of donated libraries keeps on. Home loans' records indicate that African studies books are either the most or the second most requested in the ISCTE-IUL library. The cultural program of the BCEA carried out several activities, including exhibitions (in April and in September).

d) CEA-IUL has actively promoted the organisation of international conferences and scientific meetings. The main conference, 7th Iberian Conference of African Studies, gathered in Lisbon 500 international researchers and was organised together with the CEAUP of Porto U. Other international conferences were on Education in Africa; Africa and the Sea; Home Space in Maputo; Tourism in Africa; Urban Health in Sub-Saharan Africa, Ventos de Mudança (with IPRI-UNL). Also, CEA promotes the a regular seminar on African Studies, receiving 10 international scholars in 2010. CEA has also organized the launching of several books and an international exhibition Rastafari na Lusolândia.

e) In 2010, CEA-IUL received international funding through projects where researchers participate in, namely from the U of Copenhagen, the ESF, the Volkswagen Foundation, the Centre d'Études des Mondes Africains/ANR, the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs, ESRC/DFID, the German Ministry of Education.

f) In 2010 CEA launched a new monographic collection Africa em Perspectiva, publishing two books. CEA maintains the scientific journal Cadernos de Estudos Africanos, having published in 2010 two thematic numbers. It also publishes a series of Occasional Papers. At the international level, it maintains a contract with Sean Kingston Publishers (Oxford) for a continuous edition program in English, becoming scientifically responsible for the series African Vistas, with independent international referees.

g) In 2010 over 30 project collaborators were preparing MA or PhD theses in the CEA-IUL and actively participated on the ongoing research activities. Nine post-doctoral researchers were working at the CEA-IUL during this period, three of them coming from the Africa Studies Centre in Barcelona. CEA-IUL also prepared several applications for international graduate teaching networks (namely Erasmus Mundus) and organized and conducted an international course for the Instituto de Estudos Superiores Militares (IESM) in September (third edition). In 2010, CEA conducted the Evaluation of the Portuguese Cooperation with Mozambique (for the IPAD) and the Demographic Study on Elder in Mozambique (for Help Age International).

ACTIVITIES

1. Integrative/multidisciplinary activities during the year of 2010

CEA-IUL aims at developing scientific research of multidisciplinary nature in Africa, particularly in the field of social sciences, development studies and economics. This research is devised for an international audience, comprising the academy, researchers and policy-makers. CEA-IUL's visibility is expressed in the conferences and publications organized by CEA-IUL, its strong participation in the research and diffusion activities of AEGIS and other international networks, with a global orientation of creating a discussion forum where scholars of different scientific domains, development practitioners and policy-makers gather. The most significant outputs of these activities are CEA-IUL multidisciplinary projects, conferences and publications, advisory reports, networked data sharing at an international scale, definition of up-to-date research lines, trends, themes and practices for academic teaching purposes.

CEA-IUL conducted throughout 2010 the following projects with a multidisciplinary approach:

(1) States, Public Policies and International Regulation: Writing History in the Horn of Africa; Reconciliation and Social Conflict in the Aftermath of Large-scale Violence in Southern Africa: the cases of Angola and Namibia; Monitorization of Conflicts in Africa.

(2) Social and Cultural Dynamics: Higher Education and Development in Africa: Portuguese cooperation with the PALOP; The Role of Civil Society Organizations in Education and Training: Angola, Guinea-Bissau, Mozambique and S. Tome and Principe; Gender and therapeutic pluralism: women access to private health sector in Africa; The Impact of Tourism in the Community Development in Africa; Home Space in Mozambique.

(3) Globalisation, Economy and Development: Cape Verde and São Tomé e Príncipe: a comparative analysis of two African island states; Les Dynamiques du Développement Local Urbain (lead by the IRD); African societies facing global dynamics: turbulences between external intervention, migration and food insecurity; The Future Okavango. Identities and Borders in Africa; DESERTO – Spatial and Social Dynamics: Networks, Exchanges and Organisation in the Namibe; Mining Cities in Africa (UPIMA).

CEA-IUL also organised several international conferences and events: Congress “Portugal e os PALOP:

Cooperação na Área da Educação” (March); Dias do Desenvolvimento (IPAD) in Lisbon (May); International Conference “África e o Mar no Século XXI” (May); Conference “Urban Health in Sub-saharan Africa” in Bamako (Mali) (March); Exhibition “Ras Tafari in Lusoland” (April, Mains; May, London; Bordeaux, September); CIEA7 – 7º Congresso Ibérico de Estudos Africanos (September); Conference “Ventos de mudança no mundo colonial: as Nações Unidas, Portugal e as independências africanas” (December) (IPRI-UNL).

2. Outreach activities during the year of 2010

The primary objective of the CEA-IUL is specifically directed to the expansion and consolidation of the existing research, namely through: a) supporting projects and their relation to both a academic and a non-academic public; b) supporting the relation between researchers and teaching, and investing in the internationalization of their output.

a) CEA-IUL’s main research areas are organized in three program lines where all projects have been cohesively integrated to:

- (1) States, Public Policies and International Regulation
- (2) Social and Cultural Dynamics
- (3) Globalisation, Economics and Development
- (4) DIKA.

Each line serves as framework to projects and international networking activities of the centre as well as its non-research activities, namely the diffusion of results through conferences and publications. CEA-IUL also promoted the hosting of new national and foreign researchers, within these lines of research, as well as of graduate and post-graduate students.

b) CEA-IUL invested deeper in the relationship with postgraduate teaching at both a national and an international level. The first aim obliged to increasing the research synergies between the CEA-IUL and the postgraduate programs on African Studies at the ISCTE-IUL. The second was expressed by the participation in international teaching programs, namely through the proposal of an international master program on European-African Relations (Erasmus Mundus) patronized by the AEGIS network, organized by ISCTE, in collaboration with University of Paris I and University l’Orientale of Naples, and with three African partner universities. Also, CEA-IUL participated in CODESRIA tutoring activities, supported students’ exchanges with other institutions, hosted postgraduate and post-doctoral researchers. A key factor in this policy was the constitution of the Central Library of African Studies that offers both national and international researchers and student’s outstanding facilities for research and training. Nine graduation students were integrated into projects; ongoing projects support master and PhD students' research (over 20 MA students and 10 PhD students in funded projects).

RESEARCH GROUPS

STATES, PUBLIC POLICIES AND INTERNATIONAL REGULATION

Research Group Title: States, Public Policies and International Regulation

Principal Investigator: Manuel João Ramos (and Alexandra Dias)

Research Area: N/D

1. Funding, source, dates

This group is funded by CEA multi-annual FCT funding and through other sources (Calouste Gulbenkian Foundation, American Embassy, Instituto Português de Apoio ao Desenvolvimento, Fundação para a Ciência e a Tecnologia, Fundação Luso-Americana para o Desenvolvimento, British Council). It is also funded through the ongoing projects: PTDC/AFR/100460/2008 Monitoring Conflicts in the Horn of Africa = 120.000,00€; Volkswagen Stiftung = 756,000 €; Joint Research Programme of Centre d'Études des Mondes Africains - Agence Nationale de Recherche Interdisciplinary Research Programme on Writing the History of the Horn of Africa, in collaboration with the Addis Ababa University, the Authority for Research and Conservation of Cultural Heritage, and the Centre Français d'Études Éthiopiennes, and the Universidad Complutense de Madrid = 400.000€; Joint Research Programme coordinated by the Grupo de Estudios sobre Exclusión y Conflictos Sociales of the University of Barcelona on Usage Conflicts in Public Spaces of African Cities, in collaboration with various African and European research centres = 90.000€.

2. Objectives and Achievements

Objectives

This line includes all research projects dealing with politics and public issues in Africa, as well as research projects relating to conflicts in Africa, with international regulation or not. The main objective is to conduct research about political processes in sub-Saharan Africa and the roles of the various agents and social actors involved, from the institutional and social dynamics' perspectives, and to promote a coherent understanding of the web of structural and conjuncture tensions and instabilities in different African regions, as well as the emergence of specific forms of war and violent conflict, and their political, social, cultural, and humanitarian impact on African populations.

The research aims confront the overlapping nature of internal conflicts, border warfare, and invasive military action, in correlation with demographic and economic pressures, and their overall impact on the societies concerned, whether humanitarian (massacres, genocides, forced migrations, displacements, and exodus), political and social (social re-compositions, exodus to or from urban areas, changes in power relations), or cultural (the dynamics of cultural reinvention on national and regional identities and memories). The present research aims not only to produce solid scientific analytic results but also to offer informed and conclusive data to both policy makers and national and international organizations intervening in the areas concerned. The ongoing projects, together with the substantial previous research carried at the CEA-IUL, constitute a main line of research that continues to absorb and integrate MA and PhD researchers. Additionally, the projects and the participants in the line regularly publish the results achieved, and participate in international scientific meetings.

Main Achievements

The researchers in this line have carried numerous fieldwork missions defined in the timelines of the projects they are involved with. 33 communications were presented at international scientific meetings and several workshops and seminars were conducted. 2 Scientific articles were published in different journals, as well as one authored book, one edited book and 7 chapters in edited books. The projects included in this line that ended in 2009 resulted in publications and conference communications in 2010. Through individual and collective projects, the researchers carried out bibliographic research, created information databases, and developed a series of research tools (surveys, interview guidelines) in order to assure meaningful fieldwork. Previous and new international research networks were developed through the ongoing projects. Master dissertations were completed and others are ongoing; One PhD thesis and three MA dissertations were completed while four PhD theses and various MA dissertations are being prepared are being prepared, about different subjects concerning politics, urban affairs, war resilience and social re-composition in Africa. Projects such as Reconciliation and Social Conflict in the Aftermath of large-scale Violence in Southern Africa, apart from investing in high-quality research production, promoted graduate studies (MSc and PhD) of a considerable number of their junior researchers, dominantly Africans, in Europe, generally at ISCTE-Lisbon University Institute [and Africa]. The project Monitoring Conflicts in Africa, through its an innovative collaborative website designed to aggregate thematic and regional information on the issue of conflicts in Africa, and to develop networks of specialists, has helped to reinforce our internationally networking capacities, and has developed meaningful cooperation with international and national media (BBC World, Radio France Internationale, Deutsche Welle, RDP-África, etc.).

Internationalization

Expansion of the Research Group's international research networks both through current projects and in view to prepare new ones. Much of the Group's internationalisation is fostered by CEA-IUL's long-standing participation in both European and African networks (AEGIS, CODESRIA, etc.), but our close contacts with Spanish, German, Angolan and Ethiopian research centres have increased the scope and the productivity of our internationalisation commitments. The following are some of the most relevant standing partners: Adis Ababa University, Authority for Research and Conservation of Ethiopian Cultural Heritage, Centre Français d'Études Éthiopiens, University Complutense of Madrid, Universidade Católica de Angola – Luanda, and Universidade Privada de Angola - Lubango, University of Namibia, Arnold-Bergstraesser-Institut, Universitat de Barcelona, Universidad Autónoma de Madrid, Laboratoire CRESSON – Université de Grenoble, School of Oriental and African Studies – University of London, CEMAF – Université de Paris 1, CEMAF – Université de Aix-en-Provence, African Studies Centre – Leiden University.

SOCIAL AND CULTURAL DYNAMICS

Research Group Title: Social and Cultural Dynamics

Principal Investigator: Antónia Barreto (and Ana Bénard da Costa)

Research Area: N/D

1. Funding, source, dates

This group is funded by CEA-IUL multi-annual FCT funding and through other sources (Instituto Português de Apoio ao Desenvolvimento). It is also funded through the ongoing projects:

PTDC/AFR/103240/2008= 95.000

Joint Research Programme of Instituto Politécnico de Leiria (IPLeiria) Portugal, Fundação Evangelização e Culturas (FEC), Portugal, Universidade Politécnica (A Politécnica) Moçambique.

PTDC/AFR/108615/2008, Gender and therapeutic pluralism: women access to private health sector in Africa (February 2010-January 2013), 98.000€

Objectives

The main objective is to promote a deeply understanding of the multiple aspects that at different levels and in an interrelated manner influence the social and cultural dynamics of African countries and peoples. Bringing together different perspectives of analysis into the fields of education, health and culture and emphasizing a comparative perspective, this research line aims to clarify the processes underlying the social actors practices, logical and representations that influence in different local, national and international contexts, and in an micro and macro levels, the development process of African countries. The education projects of this research line, centred in the Lusophone African countries, are directed to the identification of the relations between higher education and development, to a critical analysis of Portugal's cooperation policy in the area of education and to the understanding of the role of civil society organizations in education and training. The health project aims to enlighten the role of the private health sector in selected African countries emphasizing the access of women to health care. The cultural changes in rapidly urbanizing cities in Africa and the nature of emerging forms of 'urbanism as a way of life' are the themes of other project in this research line, that, using Maputo as a detailed case study investigates the nature of dwelling and places this within an analysis of past, present and future of urban areas in Sub-Saharan Africa. The present research line aims not only to produce solid scientific analytic results but also to offer informed and conclusive data to both policy makers and officials of national and international organizations intervening in the areas concerned. On the other hand, the research line integrates post-graduation students and researchers, willing to prepare their thesis on the subjects identified by the line or on others they might propose.

Main Achievements

The researchers in this line have carried fieldwork in seven African countries. More than 12 communications were presented at international scientific meetings and several workshops and seminars were conducted. Through the individual projects, the researchers carried on on bibliographic research, created information databases, and developed a series of research instruments (surveys, interview guidelines) in order to assure meaningful fieldwork. Ongoing international research networks were developed through the projects (Universidade Politécnica, Universidade Eduardo Mondlane, School of Architecture, Copenhagen, the School of the Built Environment, Heriot-Watt University / Edinburgh School of Architecture and Landscape Architecture, the Centre for Development of Habitat Studies, Development of Habitat Studies, Faculdade de Arquitectura e Planeamento Físico, Universidade Eduardo Mondlane, Cruzeiro do Sul – Instituto de investigação para o desenvolvimento José Negrão, CODESRIA, INEP.

Master thesis and PhD thesis are being prepared, about different subjects, namely the impact of higher education in Angolan development process, Medical pluralism in Angola and Niger, Women associations in Guinea-Bissau. Several international scientific meetings (congress, seminars and workshops) were organized in Portugal and other European countries (Scotland, Denmark) and in African Countries (Mozambique, Mali)

2. Objectives and Achievements

Objectives

The main objective of this line is to develop research related to global change, economics and development in general with a particular focus in Africa. The line integrates several projects within these areas: Cape Verde and São Tomé e Príncipe: a comparative analysis of two African island states; Les Dynamiques du Développement Local Urbain (lead by the IRD); African Societies Facing Global Dynamics: turbulences between external intervention, migration and food insecurity; The Future Okavango; Identities and Borders in Africa; DESERTO: spatial and social dynamics, networks, exchanges and organisation in the Namibe; Mining Cities in Africa (UPIMA). These projects integrate several researchers and all have an international nature. Other objectives of this line comprise the integration of post-graduate researchers; deepening and broadening international partnerships and research networks; and scientific production. In addition, there is a set of new projects in this area being structured, conducted by CEA-IUL researchers and collaborators.

Main Achievements

The researchers in this line have conducted bibliographic research, created information databases, and developed a series of research instruments (surveys, interview guidelines) and have done fieldwork in Africa within the projects' activities. They also participated in several scientific events and meetings throughout the year. Ongoing international research networks were developed through the projects (IRD, Cruzeiro do Sul, CEIC, CEDO, U Glasgow, U Ghana, U Copenhagen, U Hamburg). Several Master theses were completed and others are ongoing; PhD thesis are being prepared,

The project Identities and Borders in Africa organised inception and methodology workshops and recruited a PhD student who also participated in bibliographic research. Four fieldwork missions took place (Angola, Ghana, Guinea-Bissau and Ethiopia). Networking was also amplified through contacts with the ABORNE research network. Team members presented communications at several scientific meetings and organised panels for conferences.

In the project Les Dynamiques du Développement Local Urbain (CORUS 2), team members prepared articles for a joint publication with the results of the research and organised collaborative work of European and African teams in Luanda and in Maputo (July and September).

The project Cape Verde and São Tomé e Príncipe conducted three fieldwork missions in Sao Tome and Cape Verde (May, July and August). At the 7th Congresso Ibérico de Estudos Africanos, ISCTE-IUL, Lisbon, 9-11 September, the project co-organized a panel on “Cabo Verde e S.Tomé e Príncipe: Luta pela libertação, descolonização e construção de novo Estado independente”. Team members organised with international partners an international seminar titled “Arquipélagos Atlânticos Crioulos. Cabo Verde e São Tomé e Príncipe numa perspectiva comparada” in Mindelo, São Vicente, Cape Verde, scheduled for 22-23 February 2011. A master student of the project team prepared a draft version of her thesis.

The project African Societies Facing Global Dynamics has continued research and organization of scientific meetings and prepared fieldwork.

The Future Okavango project began its activities in September with information exchanges through the five countries network and aligned orientations towards the recruitment of students.

For the project DESERTO, CEA and CEDO members organised a workshop in the Namibe on History and Palaeontology of the Namib desert and collaborated in applications for funding of the vocational training centre in Njambasana.

Within the ABORNE network, CEA members participated in several ABORNE planned activities: - a panel on Secessionism in Africa organised by Jordi Tomas and Wolfgang Zeller and co-funded by ABORNE as part of the Nordic Africa Days conference, held in Åbo/Turku on September 30th and October 1st 2010; the Fourth ABORNE Annual Meeting in Basel, Switzerland (8-11 September) on the theme “Cross-Border Trade in Africa”, organizing also a workshop to prepare the next Annual meeting. CEA will organise the Fifth ABORNE Annual Meeting in Lisbon, in 2011, and has, in 2010, initiated the Call for papers and selection.

Finally, in the project UPIMA/Mining Cities in Africa, team members prepared papers for the inception workshop held in 2011 and published them in the project site for dissemination and comments. Research for these papers was essentially bibliographic. Methodology notes were also exchanged among the team to prepare the workshop and fieldwork.

All projects prepared a poster for the IPAD event Dias do Desenvolvimento (April 21-22, Lisbon). countries. Publications resulting of this line are in significant number and several others have started to be prepared to be published in the next years.

Research Group Title: Dissemination of Interdisciplinary Knowledge in African Studies

Principal Investigator: Manuel João Ramos (and Isabel Boavida)

Research Area: N/D

1. Funding, source, dates

FCT-Pluriannual financing program was the main source of funding for the activities developed within this line.

The two books published in the Studies series of Africa in Perspective collection were financed through their research projects: PTDC/AFR/69094/2006, and POCI/AFR/59228/2004. The member of the team and the documental exhibition have travelled to Mainz, Germany, by invitation of the German Association for African Studies. The transport of the paintings of the exhibition «Le Grand Saut / The Great Leap» was sponsored by CPLP.

2. Objectives and Achievements

Objectives

The main objective of this line is to promote the dissemination of scientific interdisciplinary knowledge in African Studies, by developing the Africana collection of the BCEA / CLAS (Biblioteca Central de Estudos Africanos / Central Library of African Studies), and the publication and diffusion of the on-going research production. Other objectives comprise the broadening of national and international partnerships, promoting networks of knowledge between libraries, archives and research institutes. This line works in close connection with all research teams, directing and flowing information on new publications.

Main Achievements

Dynamization of CEA participation in the AEGIS network of excellence: the team prepared the CEA application to organize the ECAS 5 (5th European Conference in African Studies) in 2013, which was approved by the AEGIS Board.

Consolidation of the team participation in ELIAS Group (European Librarians in African Studies) activities, through the commitment to organize its 2013 annual meeting in Portugal. Sparking the process of creating a BCEA / CLAS branch in Oporto, with the main of strengthening partnership between CEA and CEAUP, and promoting integration of knowledge among the two centres' research teams.

Launch of the collection Africa in Perspective, with two series, Studies and Monographs, a partnership between CEA and Gerpress; two books have been published in the Studies series, and one in the Monographs series.

Launch of the collection African Vistas, a partnership between CEA and Sean Kingston Publishing, UK; on-going selection and editing processes.

Participation in IPAD Development Days Fair (Lisbon, April), and CIEA 7 Book Fair, publicizing the activities and publications of the CEA.

Organization of cultural events: 1. Bibliographical exhibition «Decolonization and Independencies in Africa» together with CEHCP, Associação 25 de Abril and the Library of ISCTE-IUL, 5th-30th April; 2. Painting exhibition «Le Grand Saut – The Great Leap», with the Association Retour Travail Dignité (Mali), 9th-11th September 2010; 3. Painting exhibition «O

Triângulo das Artes – The Triangle of the Arts», with the Cooperativa de Ensino e Arte – Escola Afro-Luso-Brasileira (ONGD), 9th-11th September 2010; 4. Graphic exhibition «Diários de viagens: representações gráficas de África», 6th-24th September; 5. Material culture exhibition «Arqueologias de quotidianos africanos 1», 8th-17th September; 6. African cinema cycle at ISCTE-IUL; 7. Documental exhibition «The Emperor of Ethiopia in Lusoland»: Mainz, London and Bordeaux. Registration of the BCEA / CLAS in Africanist databases. Import of the BCEA / CLAS bibliography catalogue records into the Memórias de África e do Oriente database portal, a collaborative process between CEA, the ISCTE Library and the University of Aveiro. Implementation of procedures for depositing papers, articles and research reports in the institutional repository of ISCTE-IUL.
